Want to Save Money for College?

Achieving a Better Life Experience (ABLE) Act of 2014 allowed states to create tax-advantaged savings programs for eligible people with disabilities (designated beneficiaries). Funds from ABLE accounts can help designated beneficiaries pay for qualified disability expenses including education and training, basic living expenses, and housing. ABLE accounts help individuals with disabilities save money without being taxed on the earnings, and without losing eligibility for most benefit programs. They are not limited to your state of residence, though some programs like ABLEnow allow for tax advantages for state residents. ABLEnow is administered by the Virginia College Savings Plan.
